British Press Comments on Greeley's Nomination.

THE POLITICAL WEATHERCOCK DENOUNCED.

The Tax Question in France.

GREAT BRITAIN.

PRESS COMMENTS ON GREELEY'S NOMINATION.

London, July 12.—The London journals comment as follows on the nomination of Greeley by the Baltimore Convention:

The Advertiser confesses that its sympathies are entirely with Greeley as a newspaper man.

The Post declares that such a flagrant reductio ad absurdim will largely tend to bring about the abandonment of a system whereby the people of America have so long been deprived of all real choice for their Presidents.

The Telegraph styles Greeley a political weathercock, and says as a Democrat, supported by the South, he is endeavoring to unseat the General who saved the Union.

The Standard thinks Greeley would not be an eligible candidate were it not for his electioneering strength. He is as honest as a partisan can be, and he shows occasional glimpses of rough, good sense, but he is violent in disposition, without a regular education, and devoid of experience in the administration of public affairs. In fact, he is a respectable yeoman of the last generation. Although Greeley is inferior to Adams, he is not inferior to Grant. We do not believe if he is elected his subordinates will be appointed from the Tribune office.

FRANCE.

THE TAX QUESTION.

Versailles, July 12.—There was an intensely exciting debate in the Assembly this evening on a proposal made by Gaslonde to increase the taxes by licenses on doors, windows and household furniture. Thiers accepted the measure, and maintained that if it was not adopted he would be under the necessity of reverting to the tax on raw materials, from which ninety three millions could be realized of the 200,000,000 of francs required. "The cup," he said, "is bitter, but it must be drained without flinching to the dregs."

The members of the Right insisted on a more conservative policy. Thiers replied: "The Government are repairers, not authors, of revolution. You entrusted us with the Republic."

The Right, with one voice, vociferously cried out, "No, no," and the Left gave three rounds of cheers for the President.

After prolonged disorder and interruption of the proceedings, Thiers again made himself heard, and promised to explain his policy at a later day. Quiet was then restored and the sitting closed in good order. A Government crisis is apprehended in consequence of these manifestations.

CANADA.

ORANGEMEN'S PARADE.

Toronto, July 12.—The procession of Orangemen to-day was most orderly and impressive. About 25,000 paraded.

Kingston, July 12.—The largest assemblage of Orangemen ever collected in Kingston marched in procession here to-day. The city was gaily decorated with arches, flags and streamers. One of the chief features of the day was the presence of Johnson, Master of the Irish lodge, who answered several addresses in a stirring speech. Dispatches from several parts of Ontario report a general and peaceful turnout.

BY MAIL.

A PRINCE'S NUPTIALS.

Prince Liechtenstein was married on the 27th June to Miss Fox, adopted daughter of Lady Holland. Archbishop Manning performed the ceremony, at the Pro-Cathedral, Kensington, in the presence of a large and distinguished circle, including the Prince and Princess of Wales, Prince Arthur, the Duke of Cambridge, Duke Teck and the Princess Mary, &c. A considerable delay occurred in the arrival of the royal party, in whose absence the ceremony could not begin, and during this time the appearance of the bride, her demeanor, her dress and her jewels were being conned with the deepest interest. Her costume, as well as that of the bridesmaids, was extremely simple, and was relieved by few ornaments. A high dress of white silk, with a pannier of rich lace, and trimming of orange blossoms and lillies, a wreath of orange blossoms on the thick black hair, a bouquet of the same flowers, made up the array of the bride. A pair of diamond earrings were the only jewels visible. The bridesmaids, six in number, were very simply attired in white gauze de Lyon, with satin stripes, demi-train skirts, with flounces of the same material, white tulle veils and pink flowers. The bridesmaids were Miss Caroline Coventry, Ladie Emily Fitzmaurice, Miss Powys, Miss Florence Herbert of Llanarth, Miss Callender and Miss Ponsonby. Each bridesmaid carried a bouquet of gay-colored flowers, and had pink blossoms or buds in the hair and at the neck, in the place of brooch or locket. Altogether the impression left both by bride and bridesmaids was one of extreme simplicity of attire. This was the more noteworthy from the extremely brilliant toilets of the guests. At last the Heir Apparent and the Princess of Wales—whose costume was one of a most delicate admixture of color—passed slowly up, and took their position on the chairs reserved for them. The Princess wore a dress of the palest blue, variegated by white and trimmed with white lace. Over this was a spencer or buckler of dark blue silk velvet, and these two hues—the most delicate sky and the richest Prussian blue—were harmonized throughout the costume. The ostrich feathers in the hat or bonnet were one of these shades and one of another, the trimmings throughout were the same; and the general effect was to set of the refined loveliness of the Princess to the utmost.

A NOTED CHARACTER.

It may be remembered that when Prince Pierre Bonaparte was tried at Tours for the murder of Victor Noir, the principal witness in his favor was a M. Natal, who, representing himself to be an English gentleman residing at Passy, said he was impelled by the love of truth to come forward and depose that, while standing in the crowd at the door of the chemist's shop to which Victor Noir's body was taken, he heard one of the seconds say, "We hit him hard." M. Laurier, counsel for the Noir family, being struck with the absence of any English accent in Natal's speech, extracted from him that he was born in Corfu, and, therefore, called himself an Englishman. Nevertheless, this evidence was very precious for Prince Pierre, as it stood alone in establishing that he shot Victor Noir in self-defense. This same M. Natal is now the hero of a Correctional Police trial which throws floods of light upon his antecedents. The person described by Judge Glandaz, the President of the High Court of Tours, as the "honorable witness," is now convicted of swindling to the extent of many thousand pounds. He went by the name of Duke of Balan, and practised for a long time upon an English firm. He cleverly cheated MM. Pereire out of about 6,000 francs. When at last arrested he naturally applied to a Bonapartist advocate to defend him. M. Grandperret declined the task, but M. Lachaud undertook it, and the facts not being controvertible he pleaded that the man being a foreigner and the frauds committed in London, the court had no jurisdiction. This plea was overruled, and Natal is sentenced to three years' imprisonment, 3,000 fine, and 30,000 francs damages.

A TERRIBLE FLY.

One of the most extraordinary facts revealed to us by Dr. Livingstone's explorations in Africa is that of the high table land of the interior, with its rich agricultural resources, its noble flora, its fine temperature, broad inland seas, and inexhaustible stores of mineral wealth, is rendered all but impenetrable to civilized man, certainly beyond all colonization, by one of the most apparently insignificant of causes, a fly. This terrible insect is a little brown, yellow-striped fly called the tsetze, scarcely larger than our common household pests, but whose sting is absolutely fatal. So deadly is its poison that it is said three or four flies will kill the largest ox. Soon after the bite, which gives little or no pain, staggering and blindness come on; the body swells to an enormous size; the coat turns rough, and in a few hours follow convulsions and death. And yet this deadly poison, under the effect of which the horse and ox, the sheep and the dog fall as if plague-stricken, is perfectly harmless to man, to wild animals, to the pig, mule, ass and goat. Here is an achievement of science that would bring glory to the discoverer—the discovery of some antidote to the sting of this venomous fly, which would open the treasures of Central Africa to the use of the world.

M. GUIZOT'S RELIGION.

The following is M. Guizot's letter to the Protestant Synod in sending in his resignation as a member of that body: "The fatigue which I feel does not permit me any longer to take part in the sitting and general discussion of the General Synod. It is not at eighty-four years of age that after the labor of each day a little rest in the evening is sufficient. I return thanks to God for having permitted me, so near the close of my life, to be called to testify my firm attachment to the Christian faith, and my confidence in the General Synod and the Reformed Church of France. I thank my colleagues, members of this august assembly, for the kindness with which they have received my free language. I respect their liberty as much as my own, even when their belief differs from mine, and I pray to God to pour His light on all their thoughts and resolutions in the work of Christian charity with which they are charged, and which inspires in all Christendom, in despite of the disputes which divide it, so great and legitimate an interest, &c.—Signed, Guizot."

CHECKS TO INTEMPERANCE IN ENGLAND.

Some stringent measures against intemperance are contemplated in the recommendations of the House of Commons select committee on Habitual Drunkards. Among them are the establishment of sanataria (which we noticed in these columns a few days ago) where, at their own or the public expense, they shall be placed with a view to reformation; fines for drunkenness ranging from 40s or 30 days for the first and second offense to £10 after the third conviction; and, moreover, the establishment of a Drunkards' Register, with careful record of every case of drunkenness that comes under the notice of the police.

THE MEMORIUM OF COWPER.

A stained glass window has just been placed in the chancel of the Berkhampstead parish church, England, to the memorial of the poet Cowper, who was born at Berkhampstead, and whose father and mother are buried in the chancel. The memorial cost £300, which has been raised by public subscriptions, chiefly through the exertions of Mr. W. Longman, Earl Brown low and the rector, the Rev. J. W. Cobb. The subject of the window is the resurrection, beneath the central figure being the poet, with hands clasped on an open Bible. On one side of the poet is the Royal Psalmist, and on the other the Prophet Jeremiah. Cowper's tame hares are also included in the representation. The inscription is as follows: "William Cowper, the poet, son of John Cowper, D. D., rector of this parish, and Ann, his wife. Born at Berkhampstead, November 15th, 1731; died April 20th, 1800." The work was executed by Messrs. Clayton & Bell, of London.

FOOD STRIKE IN LONDON.

A food strike which has been a going on for some time in the North of New England, begins to assume serious dimensions, and threatens a violation of the peace. At Consett, which is one of the headquarters of the movement, groups of women severely handled one of their own sex who ventured to make a purchase from an obnoxious butcher. The police had to interfere; but so determined is the resistance to high prices that the butchers have ceased to kill meat, and the population is reduced, in spite of itself, almost to a vegatarian diet.

FRENCH INDEMNITY TO EXPELLED GERMANS.

The Gaulois states that the French Treasury has just paid the damages and interest required by the German Government on behalf of the Germans who were expelled from France at the outbreak of the late war. The number of Prussians expelled was 19,300, Bavarians 4,425, Wurtembergers 6,578, Badeners 8,329, Hessians 1,800, and natives of other German States 2,200, making a total of 42,632.

A SPECK OF RIOT.

"Rabagas" has caused a riot at Bordeaux. At the second representation, the authorities, aware of an intended Republican demonstration, took measures to prevent it. The piece was hissed, and the audience sang the "Marseillaise." Gens d'arms burst into the theatre and when they left it, crowds followed hissing them, and still singing the obnoxious air.

INTERNATIONAL RIFLE CONTEST.

England was successful in the contest for the International Challenge Trophy, at the rifle gathering at Edinburg. The English team made 1,194 points, the Scotch 1,191, and the Irish 1,116, firing at ranges of 200, 500, and 600 yards.

POLITICAL.

Greeley Notified of his Nomination by the Baltimore Convention.

New York, July 12.—The committee appointed at Baltimore to notify Greeley of his nomination waited upon him to-day, shortly after twelve o'clock, at the Lincoln Club. Ex-Senator Doolittle then formally presented the official notification of the nomination.

The following speeches were made on the occasion: Mr. Doolittle said: "Mr. Greeley, the National Democratic Convention, recently held at Baltimore, charged us with the pleasing duty of waiting on you in person to notify you of its unanimous nomination of yourself as a candidate for the Presidency. We were informed it would be agreeable to you to meet us here at this time, and we have come in a body to place in your hands this official notification.

"The published proceedings of our Convention show great unanimity, but those only who took part in them can realize the cordiality and enthusiasm with which it resolved to sustain the Liberal Republican movement, to co-operate with all patriotic citizens to support the principles declared at Cincinnati, and resolved also as the best and surest mode of giving effect to those great principles, to nominate and to elect the same candidates. We both witnessed and felt that cordiality and enthusiasm."

Mr. Doolittle then introduced the members of the committee individually to Greeley. When the ceremony of the introduction was over, Greeley spoke as follows:

"I should need time were I to attempt to reply fitly and fully to the important and, I need not say, gratifying communication. It may be that I should reply in writing, but as I have lately addressed a letter, which has been pretty widely considered, to the Liberal Republican Committee, it may be not be necessary. I can only say now that I accept your nomination—accept it gratefully in the same spirit in which it was offered. I am at present in a position which doubtless many would regard as a proud one, but which is still an embarrassing one, because it involves the temporary, and I trust only temporary, annoyance of a misconstruction of my motives on the part of some valued and lifelong friends. I am confident time alone is necessary to vindicate my motives to all candid observers, and to convince all, indeed, of the disinterestedness and patriotism of the course I am pursuing and intended to pursue long before I was assured of so much co-operation and sympathy. The time will come, and I trust in God the opportunity too, when the world will see that you are no less Democrats because you have pursued the course you have, and that I am no less a Republican because I accept your nomination."

Here Mr. Greeley's voice faltered with emotion. He recovered himself, and continued: "I am not much in the habit of receiving nominations for the Presidency [great applause,] and I am consequently unable to reply as readily and fluently as others might. I can only say I shall be happy to see all of you, or at least as many of you as can come, at my humble farmer's home, where I shall be to-morrow, and where we shall be able to converse and confer more freely than here. If you will come I shall be happy to make you welcome to the best the farm affords [more laughter,] and so I simply wish you farewell."

Conference of Unterrified.

Washington, July 12.—The Democratic Congressional Executive Committee were in conference to-day at the Capitol, with Senator Fenton and others of the Greeley and Brown Campaign Committee, with a view to concerted action in the Presidential canvass, including the distribution of documents. Hon. Samuel F. Randall, being Chairman of the Pennsylvania Democratic Committee, resigned the Chairmanship of the Democratic Congressional Executive Committee, when Gen. Slocum was elected to fill the vacancy.

The committee was visited during its session by Messrs. Casserly, Beck, Marshall, and other prominent Democrats. Preparations were made for the immediate publication of documents for distribution, and a resolution was passed asking the chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of each State and of each county in all the States to forward at once the names and postoffice addresses of the members of their respective committees, for the purpose of enabling the Congressional committees to forward documents to them for distribution.

Work will be commenced as soon as possible.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

A rising barometer, northerly winds, clear weather, and probably a light fall in the temperature will prevail on Saturday from the Ohio Valley to the lakes; Westerly to Northerly winds and generally clear weather, and clearing weather for the New England and Middle States. The condition continues favorable for partly cloudy weather and areas of rain for the Southern States east of the Mississippi.

COLUMBUS.

Accident on the Pan-Handle Railway.

Columbus, July 12.—Passenger train No. 6, going east from this city, on the Pan-Handle route, while near Bowerstown, this morning, collided with a freight train coming west. The result was that the baggage car telescoped the smoking car, and this caused the smoking car to retreat under the passenger coach, tumbling the train generally off the track. Eleven persons were so badly wounded as to require surgical attention, while others were slightly scratched. The only one that had bones broken was George Crosby, a Cincinnati grocer, his left leg being broken, a rib broken, and his face badly cut. The wounded were all well cared for. The cause of the accident was that the freight train was some minutes behind time at the Bowerstown switch.

MEMPHIS.

Casualties.

Memphis, July 12.—Richard Somerville, aged eighteen, a son of Colonel Richard Somerville, candidate for Congress for this district, while preparing for a deer hunt, yesterday, near Mason's Depot, shot himself in the hand and bled to death. He was a very promising young man, and his death is universally regretted.

Pat Malooney was shot and fatally wounded on Poplar street, last night, by John Dolan, who fired at another party, and the ball struck Malooney on the head. Dolan fled, but was arrested and committed to jail.

SPORTING

Aquatic.

Dixby, July 12.—In the scull race this morning Brown beat Fulton by about four lengths.

Sewing Machine Trade.

It is estimated that 600,000 sewing machines are annually sold in this country, the yearly sales amounting to between twenty and thirty million dollars. Of actual machines directly engaged in making sewing machines, irrespective of those whose livelihood is gained in producing the materials which enter into their structure, there are at least ten thousand, whose wages, at a low estimate, amount to $25,000 per day, or seven and one-half millions yearly. And these are but a portion of the men employed. The competition between different makers has caused advertising to become a most important item from $75,000 to $100,000 being spent annually in this manner by each of the leading makers.

New York, July 12, 1872.

THE EIGHT HOUR QUESTION.

A large meeting of boss carpenters was held last night, at which a resolution to rescind the eight hour resolution passed May 20 was lost by a vote of sixteen to eighteen. The meeting broke up in confusion.

The Employers' Central Executive Committee continue to hold a daily session here, making preparations previous to forming a combination of all the employers in the United States to guard against the strikes of workmen in the future.

The Eight Hour League Executive Committee assent to allowing men to remain at work ten hours where they now do so, and let those under the eight hour system try and maintain it. The committee want to be maintained throughout the summer in making preparations for a strike next year, as all hopes of the eight hour system becoming general is now abandoned.

ILLNESS OF B. GRATZ BROWN.

The Evening Telegram announces that B. Gratz Brown was suddenly taken with cholera morbus at one o'clock, and now lies dangerously ill at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Doctors Steele and Henry are in attendance. Carl Schurz was refused admittance to the room.

Later.—The illness of B. Gratz Brown, though severe for a time, was merely temporary. It was caused by eating cherries and exposure to the sun. He is rapidly recovering, and was visited this evening by several friends. In consequence of his illness the committee of the Baltimore Convention postponed their call upon him.

VERDICT ON A RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

The Coroner's jury in the case of the deaths from the recent accident on the Southside Railroad returned a verdict to the effect that the deaths were due to culpable carelessness and violation of the time table on the part of John Rathbone, conductor, and James Scott, engineer. Both were imprisoned and the papers in the case handed to the District Attorney.

STOKES' TRIAL.

Mr. Tremain continued his argument for Stokes the whole day, commenting at length upon the testimony in the case. He concluded his argument at 3:15 P. M., when District Attorney Garvin began his address for the people, which consumed the rest of the day, and will be continued to-morrow.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

GENERAL.

At the annual meeting of the American Home Missionary Society, held sometime since, we learn the following results from the report: The number of persons engaged in the work, preaching, etc, 961. The institution of labor gives to the New England States, 308; Middle States, 62; Southern States, 3; Western States and Territories, including 45 on the Pacific Coast, 588. Of the whole number in commission, 447 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 339 have ministered to two or three congregations each; and 175 have extended their labors over wider fields. The number of Bible-class scholars is not far from 76,500. The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 608 missioneries, amount to $34,445.11. One hundred and ten missionaries report revivals, seventy to ninety hopeful conversions. The number of conversions reported by four hundred and ninety ministers is 3,533.

The venerable Bishop Johns of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, in a recent address to his diocese condemns the "round dances," in unmeasured terms as "that lascivious mode of promiscuous dancing, styled the 'round dance,' a demoralizing dissipation, disgusting to the delicacy of refined taste, and shocking to the sensibility of the renewed mind. This scandal is not to be tolerated in the Church of Christ. Let every appeal be made in the way of affectionate remonstrance. Judicious teaching and earnest prayer, for the reformation of those led astray, if God, preadventure, will give them repentance. If all such efforts prove unvailing to remove this scandal, at the same time employing the last expedient in awakening the offender to a sense of his sin and danger, it becomes necessary to resort to the exercise of decided discipline, it must be so." The convention took a moderate view, and passed a resolution of a mild type.

Bond, who brutally assaulted Rev. J. J. Thompson at Cincinnati, some weeks ago, has written a letter from jail to Rev. Mr. Thompson, in which he uses the following: "For days, weeks, and months, my brain has been a fire, crazed, driven to desperation, reason has given way. I was no longer, brother Thompson, in my right mind, or I should not have done as I did. I have tried to seek God's forgiveness for what I have done." This indicates that the frivolous cause alleged for the murderous attack is unfounded. Mr. Thomson has sufficiently revived from the wounds to leave for home.

The Missouri Lutheran Synod, at its late annual meeting, took action that it would no longer insure its buildings against fires, "because the glory of God requires such (non-insurance), particularly at this time. The Synod does not, however, mean to burden the conciences of individual members of congregations by requiring them to leave their own houses uninsured. Each man should act in this matter according to his knowledge and convictions."

Rev. W. A. Snively, formerly of this city, now rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Albany, N. Y. preaches the annual sermon before the De Lancey Association of Hobart Colleges, and the Baccalaureatte sermon is to be preached by the Rev. E. M. Van Deusen D. D. formerly of St. Peters Episcopal church of this city, now of Utica, N. Y.—both to-morrow, the former in the evening, and the latter at night.

At the gathering of the Methodist Social Union, of Boston, at the residence of ex-Gov. Claflin, comprising two hundred and fifty persons, were quite a number of distinguished guests. Among the number were Bishop Haven, and Hon. Henry Wilson, the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency.

Rev. E. C. Towne, Unitarian minister, having removed to New Haven, Connecticut, announces that a part of his purpose on the exchange of residence is to be a missionary to the heathens, which the name of Orthodoxy of doctrine and discipline, has made New Haven and Yale College one of its chief strong holds.

Dr. Cutler, of Brooklyn, visiting Europe and presented at the meeting of the Grand Assembly of the Irish Presbyterian Church, represents the discussions to give congregations liberty to introduce organs, (not granted) very exciting. The Doctor characterizes it as an "eruption of mud and lava."

The Maine Methodist Episcopal Conference has appointed a standing committee on "Leaving the Ministry." This question is in a fair way of being thoroughly ventilated, whether a man who has consecrated himself to the ministry can leave it, and be relieved of the vows assumed.

The hail-storm near Green Spring Run on Tuesday last, says the Cumberland News, was more severe than at first thought. A gentleman who was at the edge of it says it was the hardest storm of any kind he ever saw. It extended along the railroad about two and a half miles, but how far into the country our informant was unable to state, but probably from ten to twenty miles. Whole fields of fine corn on the river bottoms are cut to pieces, and almost entirely destroyed by the large hailstones. The rain and hail were accompanied by strong winds, which assisted in the work of destruction.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

If the Democracy choose the Chappaquack, the election of Grant in November is rendered certain.—Chicago Times.

Cassius M. Clay says: "We are living under a despotism." Reason: General Grant ordered him back from St. Petersburg, where he was making an ass of himself and disgracing the country.

"For General Hartranft we have nothing but praise. He was a gallant soldier, and he has been a faithful official. He is a Radical Republican, and he would make a good Governor."—Press, April 10th, ult.

It is, perhaps, the most curious event that ever occurred in the history of parties that nearly all those who are crying out against centralization have for their candidate for the Presidency a man who has always claimed that we hadn't half enough of it.

It is idle to talk about reform when the reformers who want to come in are simply the old Democratic stagers, who have been against every reform of the past twelve years, and the horde of all sorts who are attracted around Mr. Greeley by hopes of plunder.

It is eminently fitting that Horace Greeley, the defender of secession, the apologist of treason, and the Niagara peace commissioner, (self-appointed,) should be nominated for President by the Democrats in the city of Baltimore, where Democrats first shed blood in resisting the Union.

A correspondent of the Chicago Journal, writing from Worth county, Missouri, says: "I do not know a Republican in Northwestern Missouri who will vote for Greeley, not one. Many of the Democrats will vote for Grant if Greeley is nominated at Baltimore. Set down Missouri as sure for Grant and Wilson.

A gentleman just from North Carolina, who had excellent opportunities of judging of the political sentiment of the State, says that the Republicans are sanguine of electing their entire State ticket by a large majority, and will roll up such a vote in November as to terrify the supporters of Greeley and Brown.

The Boston Advertiser speaks with no uncertain sound in the present crisis of national affairs. In a recent able article on the Baltimore Convention it says:

"Let those Republicans freshen their memories who think the time has come to transfer the power of making and administering the laws relating to the rights of citizens, to the public credit, to the power of the National Government itself, to an Administration in which the assassins of public credit and public liberty will be represented. The price they will be required to pay for the success of the coalition is too high."

The loyal people of the country would like some one of Mr. Greeley's organs to answer the following questions:

1. If the Sorehead-Republican-Rebel-Democratic-Secession party succeed will they pay the Confederate debt?
2. Will they pension the Confederate soldiers?
3. Will they protect the colored people of the South from the midnight attacks of Ku-Klux assassins?
4. Will they compensate their friends in the South for individual losses during the war?
5. Will they abolish the test-oath law?

"He means well" is thus touched off in the last number of Harper's Weekly. "Our friends think also that Mr. Greeley means well. Perhaps he meant well when he encouraged and justified secession; when he urged President Lincoln to buy a peace; when he promoted foreign intervention; when he gravely perplexed Mr. Lincoln by his Niagara performances; when he complained to Mr. Seward long ago that he had not been rewarded with an office; when he apologized for Sweeney and Tweed; when he know he has done anything which showed his fatal want of judgment. Had he been President instead of Lincoln, he might have meant well in surrendering to the rebellion. Do our friends think it enough to mean well, if they have no judgment."

The revived motto of Democracy, "Anything to beat Grant," is not new. In substance it was the one excusing cry for all the minor sins which flourished under the crime of treason. Anything to destroy the Union; anything to weaken the Union forces; anything to exterminate Union soldiers or Union men; anything to beat Union Generals; anything to crush the Republican party; anything to beat Grant. Each and all signified the same, and in their name every outrage that disgraced the page of rebel warfare was perpetrated. From the firing on Sumter to the final surrender, either in essence, or in exact language, the one motto cited to cover all forms of atrocity was the watchword of to-day, "Anything to beat Grant." Violate all rules of civilized war, ill treat prisoners, starve them, disable them, if need be murder them, "Anything to beat Grant." "Plan to burn Northern cities, plan to poison them, plan to infect them with contagious diseases. "—anything to beat Grant." As at Andersonville and Salisbury and the other noted prisons, so the cowardly and inhuman cry sounds above the roar of the rapids about Belle Isle. There, in full sight of the residences of Lee and Davis, in full view of the rebel Cabinet and the rebel Congress, was the low, flat tongue of the island, where thousands of the "boys in blue" sank under starvation and cold—starved "to beat Grant."

Hembold's property in Philadelphia has been sold at auction.

It is said that the editorship of Good Words will be made vacant by the death of Dr. Norman McDeod, will be offered to Kingsley.

Lars Tollefsm, the Norwegin giant, died at Chicago on the 3d instant. He was seven feet nine inches high, and weighed 375 pounds. He was 38 years of age. Many tempting offers were made for him to travel and exhibit himself, but he always refused, having great aversion to such notoriety. He kept a saloon in Chicago.

Charles Clinton, sixty-three years of age, and a relative of De Witt Clinton, was struck by a train on the Midland Railroad, last Friday night, and fatally injured. He was the inventor of the patent steam safety-valve, car coupling, locomotive spark-catcher, flange for car wheels, car springs, the combustible boilers, self-registering scales, cement and many other patents.

The name of Fanny Ellsler is almost forgotten here—but there is fresh mention of her in the gossip of a Paris correspondent: "The father of the King of Portugal is in Paris, accompanied by his morganatic wife, the Countess d'Elda, once the dancer, Fanny Ellsler. The ex-Majesty, a King on the ground floor, is merely a worthy husband on the first, where the Countess lives. He is said to be very affable, and no less kindly than the kindly dancer, who charmed Paris for years, in company with her no less charming sister. They are like a remembrance, a shadow of the happy times of Taglioni."

The ceremony of unveiling the monument to the German statesman, Stein, took place in Nassau, Germany, Wednesday, in the presence of the Emperor and Empress of Germany, and Prince Frederick William and the chief dignitaries of the court and empire. Mr. George Bancroft, the American minister, who was present, was invited to address the assembly. He gave an eloquent account of the career of the man whose memory Germany celebrated. Stein, he said, first kindled the idea of German unity, and time had fanned the spark into a flame. To him Germany owed the proud position she now held among the nations of the earth.

The New York Mercury accounts for the loss of Mr. Jefferson's evesight as follows: "Although warned of the fatal consequences over a year ago in New York, he persisted in using 'patent magnesium flash' to heighten the effect in 'Rip Van Winkle.' In the scene where he is turned out of his home the light or flash strikes directly in his face; also, in the scene on ascending the mountain, on the 'O. P.' side, he rushes through it. This magnesium flash is one of the most powerful and penetrating substances now in use, and which Prof. Rogers in his lecture gave illustrations with the flash he begged his audience not to look at the instrument but on the ceiling, to note the effect of the rays, as it was otherwise very dangerous to the eye. Mr. Jefferson has the warm wishes and the hope of a very speedy recovery, and that the worst has passed is the hope of every lover of art in the country.

An "Emerald" Entertainment.

The most popular man in Vienna just now is a Turkish magnate called Kalipacha. Very few will attempt, we should imagine, to contest his supremacy over the feminine heart which he asserts with Monteeriston wiles. Recently, at a fete which cost forty thousand dollars, numbers of cold pheasants were served for supper. Servants picked out the birds' eyes and laid them on ladies' napkins—they were emeralds! It was rumored that this delightful host was en route to Paris. Paris was enchanted. He says now he won't leave Vienna. Paris is in tears.

The Chicago Post says: "A clergyman in this city entertains delighted audiences every Sabbath. His eyes and his tongue are on fire as he delivers the sacred word, and inspiration almost seems to flow from his pen. Delighted parishioner, that eloquent sermon and that impassioned delivery are the children of opium! The inspiration smells of laudanum."

Imprisonment for Life.

Perhaps the least merciful of all sentences known to the criminal law is the commutation of the death sentence to imprisonment for life; and yet there would seem to be a shadow of hope to the criminal in such a penalty. The case of the girl Libbie Garrabrant is one in point. She was convicted of murdering her lover, under circumstances which admitted scarcely any doubt of her guilt. The death sentence was passed upon her, and for some days the announcement of the commutation of the sentence has been patent, although premature, till the Court of Pardons, at their final meeting at Trenton, removed the injunction of secrecy, and the presumption became a fact on Tuesday. Death at the law's sentence is horrible—there is something indefinably terrible in being brought out to die upon the scaffold, and the condemned criminal is often hoping against hope for executive clemency. The one thought that the order making the penalty of the crime a lifetime service in the prison, carries with it the idea that some time the law may relent from its severity and the prison door be opened, and so, with each ray of morning sunlight coming in and casting uncertain shadows through the prison bars, there comes a whispered hope that something may be accomplished by anxious and persevering friends to gain the ear and touch the heart of the pardoning powers, and the awful penalty of a life's incarceration meet with a commutation. If, as in some cases, the full term is spanned out, and the band of death alone releases the prisoner from his dull confinement, the death-penalty at the beginning would have been the more merciful. The shadow of the crime itself darkens the days' hours and disturbs the still silence of the night—the intellect, strong at the beginning, wears away and becomes inactive beneath the monotony and dread loneliness of the sentence's expiation for the offense committed, and wearing away the criminal with a false hope of relief.

Among the Big Trees.

Grace Greenwood, in a letter from California to the New York Times, says: "We had a day of pure enjoyment in the woods. We drove for five or six miles up the beautiful canyon of the San Lorenza, a shadowed, winding, mountain road, such as we find no where out on this coast, and picnicked among the 'big trees.' These are gigantic redwoods, not quite equal to those of Calaveras or Mariposa, but with a few hundred years and you will see. The largest, named for Fremont, is two hundred and ten feet in height, and eighteen feet in diameter. In the hollow trunk of another he had his quarters for a while. A man can ride into this on horseback, and stable the horse. I was told that a devoted wife once spent here several months with her husband, a lumberman, and kept a couple of boarders. I felt for her. I know what it is to live in a trunk. By the way, a young fellow-passenger on the stage told us several astonishing stories about some big trees near Visalia. One, he said, parted into three about sixteen feet from the ground, and at the point of separation there was a hollow, which hollow was always filled with water—was, in fact a little lake, thirty feet wide and seventeen feet deep, so you could boat or bathe in it if you wished to, or bob for eels. He described the monstrous hollow trunk of a fallen tree, into which he rode on horseback, and after trying in vain to reach the concave ceiling with his cane, galloped on for a distance, and then rode calmly out through a knot-hole—a providential opening for the young man. But I have found that the only safe way in this country, is to doubt nothing that you hear. I have an impression that I shall some time come upon that triune tree, with its remarkable water privileges; perhaps find it utilized into a railroad tank or a baptistry. I half expect to ride into the same trunk prospected by my young fellow-traveler, and to emerge at the same knot-hole.

How a Mother Taught Reading.

I have heard of a lady who, thirty years ago, taught her children to read from toy books and newspapers until they could read distinctly and with comprehension any article written in simple language. Her method was to show the child a picture, as of an ox, then finding the word "ox," she would tell him that was "ox"—one being the picture of the animal and the other being the picture of its name. She thus taught the child to associate the two as one idea, and he was then directed to find the word in some other book or paper, and thus the word ox, wherever found and in whatever company, represented to him a definite idea, an animal with which he was farmiliar. After several words were thus made farmiliar she showed that these words were composed of letters, and that by combining these letters in different ways the name of another familiar object could be formed. In a little time the children formed a pleasant pastime in trying to form words for themselves, and in fitting them to familiar objects.

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 113⅞@114.

"TAMMANY responds to the nomination of Greeley," was the placard ostentatiously paraded at the City Hall, New York, by "the ring," on the receipt of news of the Baltimore nomination. These are the men to be appointed to office by Greeley, if elected, "regardless of past differences," as he says in a letter to an inquiring and hungry Democrat.

AFTER all, the country has been spared the terribly affliction of Horace Greeley as Commissioner of Agriculture. The New York Sun will not be deprived of a Presidential candidate.—Post, July 14, 1871.

Well, how now neighbor, is the country to be afflicted with him as President for four years? Has he improved so much in your estimation during the past year that he seems a blessing instead of an infliction?

THE Committee of the Boston jubilee has balanced its accounts, and finds a deficit of $150,000 which will have to be made up from the guarantee fund subscribed by the merchants, business men and hotel keepers of "the hub." Mr. Gilmore, who has worked night and day for months, finds no return for his labors. This affords a splendid opportunity for Boston generosity and justice, and it will probably be acted on at once.

OUR good neighbor of the Post whiningly looks back over the sandy desert on which for many years in the past it has left its foot-prints, and while wholly deserting all its former ideas, comes down graciously to the mourners' bench and confessing its sins of omission and commission, prays for absolution at the hands of those far seeing Democrats "who were willing to accept Mr. Greeley from the first." In this—its dark hour of trial and affliction—we tender our hearty sympathy to our distressed contemporary.

THE Horace Greeley movement is merely one of the last convulsive throes of the dying dolphin. Mr. Greeley has always taken a great deal of latitude, and now has taken his departure. He is charged with being a philosopher as well as an agriculturist. He asks "Why should not Horace Greeley be President?" We can tell him a reason—He cannot get votes enough; but will he believe us?

No Radical is likely to be the next President of the United States. We cannot prevent splits and personal pretentions in the Radical ranks. Whether it be Grant and Cameron or Greeley and Forney, will make very little difference.—Post, July 12, 1871.

How a year will work changes in the minds of honest men. Little did the Post think that the above paragraph would have to be swallowed to-day as an unpalatable dose.

THE Cincinnati Commercial, one of the syndicate of liberal Republican journals supporting Greeley, would have preferred a simple endorsement of Horace to a straight out nomination at Baltimore. It asserted a few days before the Convention met that the course adopted—

"Will be interpreted as an attempt to Democratize the Liberal Republican movement, and drive from the support of the ticket a multitude of voters who will vote for Greeley and Brown only upon the assurance that they represent the best phase of progressive Republicanism, and not the doubtful advancement of a conservatism that moves only under the prick and goad of accomplished facts and hard political necessities."

The Convention went further, and has unquestionably "driven from the support of the ticket" many of the sincere men above referred to.

WE KNEW it could not be otherwise. It was as certain as the stupendous humbuggery of his moral menagerie and improving circus. Barnum has come out for Greeley! The Tribune prints a private letter, from which it appears that the Great Showman has "known Horace Greeley thirty years, and known him only to admire and love him." In Mr. Barnum's opinion "he is as pure a man as God ever made." "He is the most unselfish man" Mr. Barnum ever knew. "He is almost celestial in his virtues," but is "sufficiently worldly-wise in the domain of politics" to prevent these virtues, as we understand it, from carrying him into any moral excesses, such as have been feared. Mr. Barnum says that "the White House will be hallowed by his occupancy," and that he thanks God for being permitted to do what he is able towards electing such a man as President. What he is able consists in offering his large circus tent for Greeley meetings when it is not otherwise engaged. It would be a good idea to loan the managers of such meetings the material necessary for the great two horse act showing Greeley astride of the nags "Protection" and "Free Trade."

THE New York Times, the other day during the sweltering heated term, hit upon a humane idea that should be acted upon in all large cities. It described the condition of the suffering little children in the public institutions, and under care of charitable societies in New York, and urged the propriety of a subscription to give them a taste of country air, green trees and shady groves, by an excursion beyond the limits of brick and mortar. The suggestion touched a chord in the popular heart, and subscriptions have flowed in to carry out the humane purpose until they reached on Wednesday last nearly three thousand dollars, mostly contributed in small sums. The first excursion of five hundred poor children was to have taken place on Thursday, and others would follow. To-day one of eight hundred children goes out to the woods under the care of the Children's Aid Society. To carry out the benevolent enterprise cars and steamboats are hired and refreshments purchased.

GREELEY AND PENNSYLVANIA.

The duty of making the motion in the Baltimore Convention that Mr. Greeley's nomination should be made unanimous, was assigned as a matter of compliment to Pennsylvania, to William A. Wallace, long State Senator and Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. Mr. Wallace never invested largely in Greeley stock, and was bitterly opposed to his nomination by the Baltimore Convention. The duty of making this particular motion could not have been a very agreeable one, and Mr. Wallace's performance of it was peculiar. His little speech was rather an argument against the motion he was instructed to make than in favor of it. He was very careful to say he was instructed to make the motion, and did not do it voluntarily. We quote this extract from the lawyer-like address of Mr. Wallace:

They (the Pennsylvania Democracy) have seen no reason why they should reverse their traditions or choose for their leader one who has heretofore been the embodiment of antagonism to every thought and purpose of their minds; but, Sir, they are proud of their organization, for they are the men who created and desired to perpetuate its existence, that its glorious record and its benefits may be the heritage of their children, and they will yield obedience to its discipline. They will accept the result that the tribunal of this last resort—the high court of their party—has decreed, and in October, under the lead of a statesman of national reputation, will concentrate their forces in an invincible phalanx that shall smite with destroying power a disorganized and divided enemy.

Here we have an argument against the nomination made at Baltimore and a promise that the Pennsylvania Democracy will devote their best efforts to the election of Mr. Buckalew in October, but not one word of hope is held out to the Greeleyites for the Presidential election a month later. That is passed over, although it was the very point Mr. Wallace was put up to speak upon. He dodges it with skill, but the omission is marked and significant.

The reason of this is not difficult of explanation. Mr. Greeley's nomination is a sore blow to the party in this State. The Democratic press almost without exception has ridiculed and denounced it from the outset. So far as these papers had the capacity to create a sentiment in their party it has been one of extreme violence against Greeley, and now, we believe, a very considerable proportion of the Democracy of the State prefer Grant to the Baltimore candidate. This has been the teaching of the party organs and is not at all suprising. The coldness with which the Baltimore nomination has been received from one end of Pennsylvania to the other is evidence of the dissatisfaction and indifference of the masses. The papers will grudgingly perform their quota of lip-service, but the absence of all sincerity will be so marked that their feeble rallying cries for Greeley will be without influence. The opposition to him was honest and hearty and took firm hold of the Democracy. They cannot and will not change their notes so readily as the papers and politicians.

Mr. Wallace presents a fair index of the purpose of the politicians of his party, when he ignores the November election and gives prominence to the less important contest in October. The Democratic politicians propose to test the sincerity and strength of the "liberal Republicans" before giving any guarantees of their support of Greeley. They have been sold, it is admitted, but the goods are not yet delivered. The State election will be contested with the utmost power of the party, and the Presidential question held in abeyance it it has been decided. That, undoubtedly, is to be the policy of the opposition, so far as it can be made to work. We do not believe it practicable, nor will the Republicans permit it. The elections come so close together, and the issues in October and November are so blended, that the more important national contest will swallow up State and local elections. It is well enough, however, that the Republicans should be informed of the purpose of their opponents, that they may meet it, and frustrate the attempt to skulk national issues in an election that has its decsive influence throughout the Union. It is an accepted trueism that the October election in Pennsylvania correctly foretells the result in the nation a month later. Forney, in his disorganizing labors, endeavors to show that it is not necessarily so. Not necessarily, of course, but history proves that it has always been the case.

GENERAL SHERMAN ABROAD.

General Sherman was caught by an American correspondent, representing the World newspaper, at Geneva, and interviewed as to his personal experience on the three continents he has partially visited, and also as to the impressions he formed of the rulers and the people with whom he came in contact. A brief synopsis of all this was telegraphed, but its interest leads us to dip into it more largely than the Associated Press. General Sherman is an acute observer, and has an off-hand way of putting things that goes to the marrow of the subject. Starting at Gilbraltar, the General passed through Spain, France, Italy, Egypt, part of Georgia, Russia, Austria, Germany and Switzerland. Everywhere he was received with cordiality except in Berlin, where, if we credit the New York Tribune's letter, the reception was cool and restricted by official formalities such as he experienced in no other capital.

Switzerland struck General Sherman by its beauty and grandeur, and also its smallness. He said:

You seem to be in the territory at one moment and all but out of it the next. The cultivation is wonderful; not an acre of waste land except, of course, on the sides of the mountains, and even there the spade has been at work on all the gentler slopes. But, according to our American notions, the yield would scarcely seem proportioned to the immensity of the labor. Indeed, I have been everywhere struck with the immense pains people—the mass of people—take for their living; the prodigality of effort as contrasted with the slightness of the reward. In many countries the agriculture, in its results, suggests a mere gleaning of a soil of which past centuries have had the full crop.

The impressions of Russia received by the General are very interesting, especially in regard to its advancement in the arts of civilization. He gave his experience as follows:

I can assure you that even in the rather remote districts of Russia I reached I found churches, schools, and all the essential institutions of a growing civilization. I hardly saw any country—always excepting my own—which is so manifestly growing under one's eyes. All sorts of great experiments seem to be in progress, social experiments prevailing, but not a few of the political kind. It is not generally known, for instance, that in Russia there has existed for centuries, and still exists to-day, the type of that communal organization which appears to have such fascination for the Paris "Reds." With the Russians it is an institution dating from a period, if not of barbarism, at least of the dawn of civilization. The commune there sprang from the natural, and indeed almost inevitable association of the country people living in a particular district. Before railways were made, and when there were fewer roads than now, such a little community would be almost completely isolated. It was only a larger family living in the wilderness, and living under such conditions as made individual enterprise nearly impossible. A division of duties took place in accordance with these conditions. The men worked in common at some trade, and the produce of their united labor was sold once a year at one of the great fairs, generally Nijni Novgorod.

The communal institution still exists in some districts, though it has of course been somewhat modified by the many changes incidental to emancipation. Its great principle is, if not exactly a common, at least a kind of equal ownership of the soil. A man on his coming of age has a certain share of land allotted to him, and when the community has so increased as to have used up all its allotable land a new commune is founded in another district. This offshoot retains the name of its parent stock, and, in like manner, all the offshoots from it bear some common designation; so that you have a perfect genealogy of communities, all pointing to an origin in a very limited number indeed. The facility with which the people obtain a kind of part ownership in the land is a very noticeable thing in Russia, and it points to a future in that conntry in some respects not unlike that of the United States.

The Czar of Russia, and in fact all the sovereigns with whom General Sherman came in contact, struck him as hard workers. The reverence and affection of the Russians for Alexander seemed unbounded, and the General thinks its present system of Government best suited to the needs of the empire. On this point he said:

I suppose every form of government may be made a good one by being faithfully administered, and the administration in Russia seems to pursue no other end than the general good of the people. It is at present too young a country (in a certain sense) for a theoretical perfection of polity. There is so much for the people to do that a very simple and primitive form of government suffices for them. There are so many material problems to solve that the great mass of the nation have neither leisure nor inclination for political speculation. Asia has to be united to Europe by roads, by telegraphs, by identity of social life and manners. Whole provinces have to be peopled, surveyed, planted, or cleared. Capitals have to be built, towns made out of villages, and villages out of rows of tents. In the older countries of Europe all this has been accomplished, and the problem is what is to be done with the accumulations of labor? When Russia becomes like Italy or Spain, that question may arise in its turn, but there is no immediate prospect of it just now. The government is fully on a level of intelligence with even the most civilized parts of the empire, and to the least civilized in its guiding, sustaining, promoting power, it must seem like an emanation of superior intelligence. For this reason, I suppose, one hears of so few serious rebellions among the many races subject to the Russian sway. The needs of these races are so great and their own helplessness is so extreme that they must be bound by the strongest tie to the power which supplies them with that initiative in civilization which they could never find in themselves.

General Sherman was favorably impressed with the Khedive of Egypt, from whom he received marked attention and civility. We quote:

He (the Khedive) is a ruler who personally superintends the work of government. He is well educated and a perfect man of the world, fully alive to the fact that his own interest lies in furthering the development of his people. He takes an active interest in trade and manufactures. He is one of the greatest sugar planters in his own dominions. During our civil war, you will remember, he set to work to raise cotton for the English market. When the war was finished the Egyptian trade in cotton came nearly to a standstill, but a very handsome profit had been made out of it in the meantime. Then the land reverted to its original uses, and the old cotton fields were planted for produce better suited to climate and soil. The growing of sugar is now the Khedive's favorite scheme. I called on him one day and found him sitting at a table covered with several varieties of cane and specimen jars of the sugar extracted from them. He laughed and said I might suppose he had turned grocer, and then he went on to talk about his plantations, and showed as much practical knowledge as if he had been at that kind of farming all his life.

In Egypt, as in Russia, the General thought the existing government best suited to the wants of the people.

Of the German army, the General while in Berlin made every investigation available to him, and gives his observations as follows:

It is unquestionably the finest army in the world, and no wonder, if we consider the years it has taken them to make it. It is a perfect machine of war. The men who have recreated it have made every separate force, aptitude and impulse that can contribute to military success the subject of the most rigorously scientific study. Originality is only a new form of truth, and truth is generally the reward of painstaking thought. By hard thinking and close observation of the mental as well as the bodily habits of men the Prussians have established a system exactly adapted to their national traditions, temperament, and moral and political organization. The same study would yield other results as applied to other countries, and therefore an imitation of the Prussian scheme in its details instead of in its spirit would, in my opinion, be a mistake. The most striking thing about it is the new recognition it has given to individuality in the soldier. The army is an aggregate of localized and therefore individualized corps, and every man in every corps is taught to combine a sense of personal responsibility and of self-reliance with the instinct of military obedience. It is not only any army of thousands, but an army of units. And this I take to be the nicest military problem in the whole range. It has often been talked about before, but perhaps never fairly grappled with. I do not say the Prussians have completely solved it; but they have gone further than any nation I know of. You may talk contemptuously of the Prussian drilling; but their idea seems to be to drill men to do without drill; in fact they have made their drilling so thorough that it has become a kind of synonym for the aggregate of all the forces of their varied culture, and that culture has the union of the most thorough individuality with the most thorough subordination for its highest end and aim.

Of France the General had not seen much, and was therefore reticent in his opinions. Everything, the army especially, appeared to be in a state of transition.

Of course the correspondent touched on American politics. The General said briefly: "I think Grant is going to win this election. I don't see who's to stand against him." And of the Democratic party he declared:

The Democrats are in a position of difficulty. They represent that party which has the least frankly accepted the results of our civil war, and I do not believe any party so circumstanced in sympathies will, in our generation at least, win the confidence of a majority of our people. The war had to be fought—it was inevitable. Once over we must all wish to see its bitter memories buried, but we cannot consent to have its work undone.

MATTERS OF MOMENT.

THE heavy rains which we have been favored with the past two days have been of incalculable benefit.

THE census among other curious revelations, makes known the fact that there is not a single Irishman in Utah. Polygamy seems to have no attractions for the genial sons of the Emerald Isle.

THE British Parliament is now considering a bill for proportional representation, which in principle is about the same as the American system. They are gradually coming to the light over there.

THE other day a rich specimen of magnetic iron ore found in Mitchell county, North Carolina, was sent to the General Land Office, at Washington, for analyzation by the Geologists. It is said to be of a quality that surpasses any of the iron ore yet discovered. It is almost entirely free from foreign matters, and on account of its purity, manufacturers think it is the best ore for the manufacture of Bessemer steel.

ON THE first day of August next the number of supervisors of internal revenue must be reduced from twenty-four, the present number, to ten, and Commissioner Douglass has now under consideration the manner in which the country shall be redistricted. It is thought seven of the districts will be located east and three west of the Mississippi river. It will be a very difficult task, task, indeed, to discriminate in retaining those for the new districts. Each thinks his claim entitled to the highest consideration.

OUR foreign exchanges devote considerable space to detailed descriptions of the "Fourth" celebrations by Americans abroad. London, Edinburg, Geneva, Stuttgart, Berlin, Liverpool, Paris and Dublin were all favored in this respect, banquets, balls, and fireworks being the channels through which patriotism found vent. A significant fact, too, was the attendance of foreign notables—leaders in Government circles—whose speeches indicated the most fraternal spirit and an anxious desire to learn more of the Great Republic.

THE River Echo is the title of a new weekly published at Confluence, on the Connellsville Railroad. The first number is neatly printed and makes a good appearance so far as selected matter is concerned, but there is too much of a "patent outside" look about it, and if the venture is to be successful greater attention will have to be paid to local news. The editor, Mr. E. R. Holsinger, has our best wishes for success.

FROM an official report recently issued by the British House of Commons, it appears that the soil of Ireland is owned by about 20,000 persons, of whom 5,586 own an average of sixteen hundred acres each, and 5,982 own less than one hundred acres each. Only 1,443 persons own in the aggregate 3,145,514 acres, or one-seventh of the soil, and are usually resident outside of Ireland. There are 4,465 persons who reside away from their estates, but live in Ireland.

JANUARY AND MAY.

Solon Robinson in Hymenial Harness Again—The Late Agricultural Editor of the "Tribune" as a Groom.

[From the Tri-Weekly Florida Union.]

Late on Saturday evening it was quietly rumored in a certain favored part of the city that a nuptial ceremony of no little sensational character would come off on Sunday at the Baptist Church.

The time appointed, being directly after the morning service, was a fashionable hour, and would serve to attract what is left in of the crowd of attentive churchgoers, attired in all the gay and festive style of the summer season. There was a flutter among the middle-aged maidens, and the girls in the neighborhood of the St. James were all in a twitter of nervous exhilaration. Something funny was about to be done by somebody, and that was certain. So it was not long before the appointed hour that the Union's local began to skirmish warily about the scene of the approaching disaster.

The sun was boiling hot. The sand was dead. Nature rested in breathless exhaustion. It was a terrible day, suitable for the consummation of the terrible deed. At last the organ rolled out the doxology, or something similar. Faintly a glimmer was caught of a blushing groom.

Venerable in years, perhaps beyond the three score and ten allotted to this earthly pilgrimage, yet still in the full bloom of love's glorious passion, he stood at the altar more like the slayer than the lamb, ready to sacrifice the patient victim. The groom was dressed without ostentation, and apparently with the object of keeping cool. His legs were embalmed in the richest quality of Kentucky jeans, which neatly fitted over a pair of 10½ agricultural pumps; a white vest loosely flowed about his waist, and a lengthy brown linen duster completely surrounded his person and his boots. His hands were recklessly embosomed in a pair of yellow cotton gloves, which toned well with the other various articles of his costume. A glazed cap (undress uniform of the Fire Department) and a green cotton umbrella are said to have gracefully reclined together on a seat behind him.

The bride bore herself with resignation. She appeared younger than the groom. In fact, it was said that she was really less aged than her swain. She is about twenty-seven. She did look "chirrup" and nice, and her apparel was tasty and cool, being a white light muslin, with brown stripes and trimming, white straw hat, with brown toggery, and veil to match very nearly the gloves and linen duster of the comely groom. The ceremony was impressive for its brevity and affecting in its simplicity—that is, it was as grand and impressive as it could be for short, and under the circumstances. The minister prayed, and did it fervently. There is no doubt he was sincere. Then he remarked to the individual in jeans that he supposed it was not necessary to explain to him the solemn duties of the connubial situation. Not much. The groom quickly coincided. He was posted. Thereupon the twain was pronounced husband and wife.

The service was what might be called the soul of brevity. T'was a good thing for a hot day, and gratifying to the couple who were doubtless in a hurry to get home. Romeo, he turned with a sort of sick smile, and slowly he bended his linen duster and impressed upon the chin of his blooming Juliet the customary seal of unquenchable and enduring love. And then there seemed to come a sigh—mute, plaintive—but rather appropriate. Solon Robinson and Mary Johnson were one and the same.

The bride and groom—June and December—started on their bridal tour on Monday evening.

A Woman in a Turkish Bath.

M. H. B., the sprightly lady correspondent of the Missouri Republican, has been taking a Turkish bath in New York, and don't like it. Here's what she says of it:

We have divested of every stitch of our clothing, our rings and bracelets locked up, our back hair taken off, our own special possession of seventy-five or a hundred hairs made into a little hirsute pill, and impaled with a hair pin. That was the only token of civilization we boasted. The procession formed. At the door we were handed a minature sheet and a little bit of sponge wet with cold water. Through a passage to a room, where we dropped our sheets and entered a vapor that clothed us decently. Well, in the steam I thought I should suffocate. It poured up, and in, and down through holes till it was dreadful. The use of the wet sponge, I here ascertained, was to put on the top of your head to prevent "coup de steam," or some such dire complaint. They wouldn't let me out, and the temperature got worse and worse, and I began to think of my mother and an obituary notice in the Republican, when we were pronounced cooked enough, and let out into a room in which was a mighty tank of cold water, through which you must wade or swim as you could. Cæsar's ghost! I flew through it. My anatomy and physiology were heated to boiling point. This water was like ice. It sent the blood rushing to my hollow head (I'm convinced I have no brain) and my heart came ker-flop up and went ker-chunck down. I made up my mind this was the worst of it, and tried to be resigned. I had been soaked and scrubbed in the vapor room till I was sacrificed. I stood on the brink and watched my companions splashing through the infernal tank. One of 'em, to expedite her own release, caught at my ankle, away went my soapy, slippery foot from under me, and in I went for a second time. How very near an end was the happy connection between M. H. B. and the St. Louis Republican.

At the next stage of this truly awful experience we received the "shower." I had now become convinced that I never should see home or friends again. In a calm despair I walked under a solid column of water that nearly broke my back, and just here I got mad. That fat attendant hasn't yet recovered sufficiently to make a complaint, and when the thin woman went before Judge Dowling, that gentleman said it was a conspiracy—that no woman of my size, unaided, could do so much damage. He told the woman to go home and say nothing about it, for she'd evidently been dreadfully drunk, and undertaken to walk through a carpet-cleaning-machine. And that's the first and last Russian bath I take.

A Patent Boquet Slinger.

In attending the commencement exercises of various academies and colleges, we have been amazed to see the number of boquets thrown at the performers by their kind friends, and somewhat concerned at the awkwardness with which the soft tokens are hurled. Some sensitive people say it is in very bad taste to throw flowers at an orator or an essayist at all. We, however, have no small prejudices on the matter and merely desire that if bouqets are cast, they should be thrown with some amount of skill and precision. We hate to see a young lady struck in the face by a well meaning friend with about fifty pounds of peonies, or a rare bunch of exotic plants tossed along a hall from hand to hand, smashed into pieces before it gets to its destination. Bouquets put into awkward hands are apt to become dangerous. They are showered so much at random that it is often difficult to dodge them. We propose in consideration of the fashion of casting flowers, which is now so much in vogue, that in all public halls a large bouquet slinger, modeled after the manner of the Roman catapult, be set up. It can be so fixed as to command the stage and all avenues leading to it with deadly accuracy. The range having been perfectly settled no floral tribute need never miss its mark. Sweethearts, parents and friends can deposit their flattering offerings in the machine and await the result with confidence. No nervousness about the number of eyes watching, no affectionate regard for the individual on the stage will disturb the aim of the engine. Certainly the amount of bouquet throwing that will soon be done at the present rate of increase will only be possible through the aid of machinery.

INDIANA is making progress, slowly but surely, toward a desirable and honorable status on the divorce question. The Supreme Court on Monday decided that there is no authority to decree a divorce to a husband on the ground that his wife has become hopelessly insane, at least where such insanity has not been superinduced by a vicious or reckless course of conduct on her part. A few sensible decisions on the outlying issues of this great social problem will help materially in the solution of the main difficulty, which is located on the pages of the statute books.

Summer Rain.

What is more beautiful and gently soothing than the softly dropping rain in the heat and dust of midsummer? It comes like a dispensation of love to cool the fevered air and moisten the dusty streets and parched verdure. Its music delights the ear; its beauty charms the eye, and its cooling touch lends vigor to the mind and body. Who has not blessed the poet who wove into beautiful rhyme these happy thoughts:

The queenly rose
And vassal flowers their eyes unclose,
While God His benison bestows;
And the sick man dreams of health again,
Cured by the dance of the dropping rain.

The Plague Fiend stops
In his dread career to hear the drops;
Then, farmer, mourn o'er your crops?
True faith sublime ne'er leaned in vain
On the power that sends us the healing rain.

Of murmuring shells,
And the silver chime of fairy bells
Were never born such music spells
To cheer the visionary brain
Of listening bard as the summer rain.

Earth looks more fair,
When drops that banish the sun's hot glare
Fall from the cisterns of upper air;
And her breast is cleansed of many a stain
By the gentle bath of summer rain.

It caught its chime—
Not in this fading realm of time,
But above—above in a holier clime;
And I ever hear an angel's strain
Blend with a dash of a summer rain.

TRUSSES.

Every kind of Trusses for the cure of Rupture may be obtained at Dr. Keyser's establishment, No. 167 Liberty street. It is a matter of the greatest consequence that all who are ruptured should be properly fitted with a suitable truss, and one that will keep the ruptured parts in their place. Many persons do not know when they are ruptured, and frequently years are allowed to pass by before anything is done.

This is a great error, and one that is often paid for at the epxense of the person's life.

Rupture is too serious an injury to be treaed with lightness or neglect, especially when the means for its relief and cure are so easily obtained. Children and young persons are easily cured, with the improved appliances which are constantly being added to the great variety which Dr Keyser always has on hand.

Dr Keyser's office, 167 Liberty street, from 10 A. M. until 1 P. M., and from 3 to 6, and on Saturdays at night.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SUMMER.

It is of great importance that the system shou'd be in a vigorous condition when the hot weather commences. The effects of a high temperature upon an enfeebled frame are always more or less disastrous. The loss of substance and the declension of nervous power, occasioned by excessive heat, can only be compensated by the active, healthful, and regular exercise of all the bodily functions by which the waste of nature is replenished and the vital energies renewed. The great utility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a means of toning, invigorating and regulating the organs of the body, is universally acknowledged. As a tonic it stimulates the flagging appetite and accelerates digestion; as a corrective it neutralizes acidity of the stomach and relieves flatulency; as an alterative and mild aperient it regulates the liver and the bowels; as an anodyne it promotes tranquil sleep; as a wholesome stimulant it imparts firmness and elasticity to the trembling nerves, and as a blood depurent it purifies the vital stream. The value of such a specific to the weak and debilitated is beyond all estimate. To invalids wilted down by the sultry heat of midsummer, it is as refreshing and vitalizing as the cool night dew to the sun-scorched flowers. Composed of vegetable elements only, with a basis of pure diffusive stimulant, it is safe and agreeable as well as medicinal. In fever and ague districts, and wherever the natural conditions are conducive to epidemic disease, it is considered the best safeguard against malarious infection, and the speediest remedy for intermittent and remittent fevers.

THE
Eclipse Imp'd Washing Machine
This Machine is the most perfect one now in use and will do the work of three persons in one-half of the time that it would take to do it on a washboard. It is easy to work, and an ordinary family washing can be done in one or two hours. The Machine is in the shape of a tub, and is therefore air-tight and retains the steam and heat. DAILY GAZETTE.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, July 12, 1872.

The Pittsburgh money market is in much the same condition now that it has been in for the past six weeks. Financial circles here are entirely devoid of any novelty, and a little stir like a flash of lightning or a loud clap of thunder would be productive of good, if for nothing else than to disturb the calm or monotony of the situation and impart a stirring to the financial atmosphere that might tend to keep the condition from growing morbid or sluggish. The intense heat of the past week in the eastern cities has quite demoralized money matters there, and the amount of money seeking investment on call and short time papers is astonishingly large. The continued absence of speculation in connection with the large amount of money distributed in the shape of dividends, has made capital in most of the eastern cities unusually plenty, and has caused operators to seek for investments that will yield a sure and fair rate of interest, outside of their own baileywicks.

There is a rumor from London, via New York, of initial steps for an alliance between England, Prussia and Spain, offensive and defensive, against the United States, which may have originated in the fertile brain of some very imaginative correspondent—perhaps traveling abroad for his health—and whose nerves have become unduly excited. The New York moneyied men do not take much stock in the report. However, stranger things might happen. The snubbing of General Sherman by the dignitaries of the Court of Berlin gives some little coloring to the matter.

The statement made that the yearly total of imports this year will be the largest ever placed on record, is a subject that demands the earnest attention of the business men of the country; and if it is possible to find a remedy it should be secured, and as soon as possible applied. Notwithstanding the slight decrease in imports for the month of June, the total for the last six months is seven and a half millions in excess of the very large figures of last year, and the supposition is that the imports for the next six months will steadily increase. There is nothing new in local securities or real estate.

Wool.

The Jackson (Mich.) Citizen of the 9th says: "The wool is now all sheared, but the buyers and sellers are so far apart that there are but few sales. Last year at this time seven-eighths of the wool was bought, the larger half of it shipped, and the most of the large buyers out of the market. Less than one-twentieth of the present clip has as yet been marketed. At Niles, 22,000 pounds have been marketed. At Niles last year's clip was 145,000 pounds. At Dowagiac, this year 22,000 pounds; last year 200,000 pounds. At Allegan, this clip 7,000 pounds; last year 125,000 pounds. In many of the towns where a large amount of wool was taken last year, a still smaller proportion has been taken of the present clip. The wool buyers through the state put the price at 50@55@57c., and none but the small clips that had to be sold have as yet been marketed. In Jackson, 20,000 pounds were purchased last week, the average price being 55c. At this writing there is a decline of 3c. But little wool will be sold until the haying and harvesting are disposed of."

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, July 11, 1872.

ASHES—Continue quiet, and there is not enough doing in Soda Ash to establish quotations. Pots are still quoted at 10; and Pearls 11.

APPLES—Selling all the way from $3 to $5 per bbl according to size and quality.

BUTTER—There is some inquiry for strictly prime, and there is but little of this kind offering; may be quoted at 16 to 17 cts. Low grade butter continues very dull.

BROOM CORN—Continues quiet but an early improvement in the demand is anticipated; in the absence of sales we continue to quote at 5 to 8 cents per lb.

BEANS—In light supply, but the inquiry is limited and prices are weak though unchanged; $2,50 to $3 per bushel.

CHEESE—Is in fair supply but the demand is good for the season and prices are unchanged; 10 to 10½ for Dairy; 11 to 11½ for Factory and 12 to 12½ for Goshen.

CANNED GOODS—The inquiry, as is always the case at this particular time, is very light and the season is about over. We understand that parties, representing eastern houses, have been here within the past week soliciting orders to be filled within the next sixty days.

CARBON OIL—Is quoted in a jobbing way at 19½@20 cts by the car load, and 2@3 cents additional for small lots.

CONCENTRATED LYE—Pennsylvania is unchanged at $5,50 per case.

CEMENT—Louisville Cement, $2,50 to $2,75 per bbl; Calcined Plaster, $4 to $4,50; Land Plaster, $3,25 to $3,50; Cleveland Lime, $2; Eastern Lime, $1,75.

COUNTRY BACON—Shoulders, 4@5; clear sides, 5½@6¼; hams, 8 to 10 cts. Country lard, 7@8 cts.

DRIED FRUIT—Continues dull, and the indications are that those who have stock of this kind will have to carry it over until next season.

EGGS—Continue rather slow but prices are without quotable change; 17 to 18 cts; the inside figure generally seemed to be regarded as the ruling quotation.

FLOUR—We can report a fair local trade and the feeling is entertained by some dealers that prices will not go much if any lower during the next four or five weeks, or until after harvest. The decline from its first commencement until the present time has been fully one dollar per bbl. We continue to quote, in a jobbing way, at $7,50 to $8,25 for fair to choice spring wheat and $8,50 to $9 for red winter. Rye Flour, $5,50.

GRAIN—Wheat continues very quiet, and in the absence of sales, we continue to quote at $1,60 for red, and $1,65 for white. Stock in this market is very much reduced, and as noted in our last report, holders are indifferent about selling, feeling confident that the mills will soon be wanting it, and that they may be able to realize better prices than can be obtained at present. It will be some time before the new crop is ready, and besides millers will want old wheat to grind with the new some time thereafter. Oats continue dull, and prices are weak though without important change—may be quoted at 40 to 42; sales, 4 cars at 40 cts. Shelled Corn is quiet and unchanged; 58 to 59 on track, and 60@61 free in elevator. Little or nothing doing in ear Corn. Rye is quoted at 73 to 75 cts, and the receipts and offerings continue light. We hear of a large sale having been made within the past day or two, but the particulars were not divulged. Barley—We are reported sales of several cars of western spring at 80 cts.

GROCERIES—Trade is fair—all that can be expected at this particular time. Sugars are reported strong in the east and higher, and unless there is an reaction there, an advance here must soon follow. Coffee is quoted firmer, and prices are unchanged. Some of the eastern dealers are weak in the knees, and anxious to realize, while others are represented as being indifferent about selling even at present prices. The best syrups are reported a shade higher, while low and medium grades are unchanged.

REFINED SUGARS.—Crushed, 13¾; granulated, 13; powdered, 13¾; A, 12; B, 11¾; Ex C, 11¾; C, 11¼; Circle C, 11⅜; Chesapeake, Ex C, 11¼; Lovering, 11¼; Knights C yellow, 10¼.

COFFEE.—Fancy, 24¼; prime, 23¼, good, 22¼; fair, 22; roasted, 27.

SYRUPS.—Fancy drips, 70; white; choice syrups, 65; good, 55; fair, 50; common, 35@40; blackstrap, 25.

MOLASSES—Choice New Orleans, 80; Porto Rico, 65.

RICE.—Carolina, 9¼@10; Rangoon, 7¾@9; Patna, 8 to 8¾.

HAY—The receipts continue light, but the supply, nevertheless, is still in excess of the present requirements, and prices are without quotable change, ranging from $25 to $30 per ton, according to quality.

HEMP—Kentucky rough, $130 per ton.

OIL.—No. 1 lard oil is quotable at 68 to 70 cts —a very low price, taking the price of lard into consideration.

POTATOES—Firmer in consequence of a temporary scarcity, and prices are a shade higher; we now quote at $2,50 to $3 per bbl.

PROVISIONS—Plain Shoulders, 6¾c; Sugar-cured Shoulders, 9c; Breakfast Bacon, 11½c; Rib Sides, 8c; Short Rib Sides, 8¼c; Clear Sides, 9c; Sugar Cured Hams, 15c; Dried Beef, 18½c. Lard, in tierces, 10c; half bbls, 10¼c; pails, 11½c. Mess Pork, $14,50. Ham Sausage, 10½c.

POULTRY—Spring chickens 50 to 60 cts per pair; old ones, 70 to 80 cts, according to size.

RAGS—Sales at 3¼@4cts per lb.

SALT—Quoted at $1,75 per barrel by the car load, and $1,90 in a jobbing way.

SEEDS—The is a steady demand for flax seed, and little offering; we continue to quote at $2.

TALLOW—Rendered 7½ to 8 cts.

WILLOWS—Offerings light; sales in a small way at 10 cts.

WHISKY—Highwines firmer but unchanged; 90@91 cents.

PITTSBURGH IRON MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, July 12, 1872.

Trade in pig iron is improving, and while there is no quotable change in prices, a stronger feeling is being developed. The volume of business this week was larger than it has been for many weeks preceding, and the increased demand has, as was expected, stiffened furnace men, many of whom now feel that they have the market well under control and are masters of the situation. And it must be conceded that the outlook at the present time is in their favor. Stocks in the hands of consumers are very much reduced; the enhanced cost of foreign irons has almost placed an embargo on importations, and while it is true that the majority of the mills will require but little iron for immediate wants, as most of them have been stopped to take stock and make repairs, there is no getting over the fact that a large amount of metal will be wanted within the next sixty days, as the mills will want to stock up pretty largely for the fall trade. Last season it was nothing unusual for the mills to carry a two and even three months' stock ahead, and we presume that the same course will be pursued again. The furnace-men realize their situation; they know that stocks in the mill yards are almost exhausted, that they must be replenished, and in consequence they feel confident of obtaining very full prices for their product. Mill owners also realize the situation, and this accounts for the fact that already many of them are in the market willing to contract both for present and future deliveries, and we hear of "lines" having been sold extending up to next April and May. The above may sound "bullish," but we are sure it was not written for that purpose; we have stated the general tone of the market as we found it, and we are confident that our article will be approved by the trade generally.

Finished irons are quiet but firm; and as stocks are very light and pig iron is tending upward, an early advance is not improbable. At a meeting of the Nail Association, yesterday, it was resolved to advance prices 25 cents per keg.

RIVER NEWS.

The river, under the influence of the recent rains, was rising yesterday, with twenty-six inches in the channel. Weather continues unsettled, with frequent heavy showers. Prospects for water regarded favorable.

No arrivals or departures.

The West Virginia, Capt. Peter Donaldson, is the regular independent Monongahela river packet to-day, leaving promptly at 3 P. M.

Andrew Wilson, a well known Cincinnati steamboat clerk, is here on a visit to some of his friends.

—Rates to Little Rock on bills lading given by the Memphis & St. Louis Packet Company are advanced, flour being now 50 cents per barrel, and pound freight 60 cents per 100.

—The Active struck a snag in Kanawha, a few days ago, and broke several timbers, rendering it necessary for her to go on the docks for repairs. She was running between Gallipolis and Charleston. The Jesse and Wildboy have gone for the bone left by the Active, and a lively competition for the trade is now in progress.

—Chas. Morgan, the well-know millionaire of thr Gulf Coast, has still four large dredge boats at work making a channel in Atchafalaya Bay, and the work is said to be nearly completed, when the heavier draft steamers now running outside to Now Orleans are expected to be put on this line to Berwick. What Mr. Morgan will do with his boats when his road into Texas is completed, is a matter of some speculation.

—The Davenport Gazette says: One morning last week, the steamer S. S. Merrill, of the N. W. Line, on her arrival at Keokuk from above, was levied upon by an execution from the Supreme Court of Iowa, to satisfy a judgment against the company in favor of the National Bank of Keokuk. The suit was brought to recover damages for the loss of a barge load of grain, which was sunk at the Quincy Bridge. She was susequently released on an injunction, and proceeded on her trip.

—We clip the following from the Cincinnati Commercial of Thursday. The three steamers of the late Memphis Packet Company, advertised to be sold at public sale yesterday, were disposed of as follows: The Robert Burns to Captain Henry A Jones, for $6,900; Alice Dean, to Captain C. G. Pierce, for $7,700; and Silver Moon to C. G. Pierce, $3,875. It may be supposed, from the figures at which the boats were knocked down, that the bidders were not very spirited.

—We clip the following from the Louisville Courier-Journal: There is considerable complaint among steamboatmen concerning the advance in the cost of constructing steamboats this season. There has been a heavy advance in the prices of iron, which compels a corresponding increase in the prices of machinery. As, however, the prices of labor has not increased, and as that consitutes the heaviest part of the expense, the cost of the finished machinery, the manufacturers say, has not been increased at the same per cent. as the cost of the rough metal. Last fall pig iron cost $38 per ton; this season it brings $53 per ton. Last fall bar iron sold at 3½ cents per pound; this season it brings 4¾ cents. A prominent manufacturer told us yesterday that the machinery of the John Howard cost obout $11,000, and that he would duplicate it this season for an advance of $1,000. The machinery of the Maria Louise was built last fall for $14,000. The same party says he is really to duplicate it for $15,000. The advance in the case of the Howard is less than 10 per cent. In the case of the Maria Louise it is about 7 per cent. On the other hand, the increase in the cost of bar iron is about 35 per cent., and in the cost of pig iron about 39 per cent. We got these figures from the manufacturers, who claim that their advance is not really as much as is justified by the increase in the cost of metal. The steamboatmen, however, take a somewhat different view of the matter, claiming that the increase in the cost of constructing boats is put on the manufacture of their machinery, and is too heavy to be borne.

About half past 1 o'clock this morning a man named Thomas Gillespie was taken to the Central Station House from Oakland, suffering from the combined effects of intemperate of use liquor and the effects of the heat. At the time of going to press he was in a critical condition.

Another case of sun-stroke was reported from No. 14 Strawberry alley, which it is feared may prove fatal. The two men are related and are chimney sweepers by trade.

Railroad Collision.

At an early hour yesterday morning an accident occurred on the Pan-handle Railroad near Bowerstown, which resulted in injuring five persons, though none fatally. From a statement by one of the railroad officials, it appears that the express train which left this city at two o'clock yesterday morning, collided with a freight train near Bowerstown. One passenger had his leg broken, and three other passengers, a brakeman and the baggage-master were slightly injured. The injured passengers were all in the forward car. The blame is attached to the freight train which should have been on the siding at Bowerstown.

Death from Cholera Morbus.

Coroner West yesterday held an inquest upon the remains of Kate Knox, notice of whose death was made yesterday. The deceased was about eighteen years of age and had been engaged as domestic at the California House, kept by Mrs. Fisher, on the corner of South and West Diamond streets, Allegheny. It was at first supposed that she had committed suicide. Coroner West held an inquest when the testimony revealed the fact that a day or two previous to her death the deceased had eaten a large quantity of cherries and drank a great deal of ice water. Dr. Kirker testified that in his opinion death resulted from cholera morbus, and the jury returned a verdict to that effect.

The Public Life of Capt. John Brown.—By JAMES REDPATH; with an autobiography of his Childhood and Youth.

This is a well-printed and well-bound book which has stood the test of authenticity to the forty-first edition. It is a graphic and interesting history of the youth and after public life of a most remarkable man. The publishers of this, the 41st edition declare the object of its publication to be "to raise funds for the erection of a monument to the memory of the fearless hero and martyr, the Author has donated his entire interest in the copyright to the John Brown Monument Association." Mr. J. E. Moore of Sandusky, Ohio, the accredited agent of the Association, is in this city at present and will call on the citizens to sell the work. We bespeak for him a patronage equal to the popular sympathy for the subject of the book. The profits of all the sales will go to the monument fund. Who is there not willing to contribute to an enterprise so praiseworthy? Buy a history of the man, and so place a stone in the monument to his memory.

Out Door Meetings.

For the last two years, during the warm weather, the Rev. J. D. Herr, Pastor of the Third Methodist Church, Fourth avenue, has been preaching on Sabbath evenings when the weather is pleasant in what is known as Miller's orchard, near Soho. The meetings have been of a very profitable character and good order prevails. Many hundreds of people are thus brought under the sound of the Gospel, who are not in the habit of attending church anywhere. The members of the church, and also the choir are always in attendance which gives the meeting interest and sustains its character. Such profit has already resulted from these out door gatherings, that the Pastors, of the various Methodist Churches in the cities have concluded to unite with the Third Church and its Pastor in holding a series of meetings in the orchard during next week, commencing on Monday evening at 7 o'clock. The ground will be seated and properly lighted for the occasion and all the people can hear the word of life. We wish the movement large success and hope all churches will do likewise.

Cane Presentation.

Last evening, about eight o'clock, Mr. James E. Crow, Chief Engineer of the Allegheny Fire Department, was in some way induced to visit the Grant engine house, in Allegheny. Upon his arrival he was very much surprised to find several members of the Fire Department present, and many members of other companies. He was on the point of gently reminding the firemen that they should be at their respective engine houses, when Mr. John Hunter, of the Friendship Company, stepped forward, and in a brief speech, presented the Chief with a handsome gold-headed cane, in behalf of the Allegheny Fire Department. The Chief was taken more completely by surprise, than if half a dozen fire alarms had suddenly sounded in his ears. Mr. William Brown, observing the situation, kindly relieved Mr. Crow by thanking the Department in his behalf for the beautiful token of their admiration of their Chief.

The cane is a very handsome one, with a massive gold head, upon the side of which is the name of each company and the names of all the members of the Fire Department. It also bears the inscription, "2" presented to James E. Crow, by the members of the Allegheny Fire Department.

THE FORGERY CASE.

The Alleged Forger, Dunbar, Brought to this City—His Statement of the Matter.

Chief of Police Irwin arrived in this city, yesterday morning, from St. Louis, bringing with him a man named John Dunbar, who is charged with being connected with the forgeries on the Union National Bank, in which McGovern figured so conspicuously last January. McGovern and a companion were arrested at that time, but Dunbar escaped, and for a long time was not heard of.

A short time since information was received that Dunbar was in St. Louis, and Mr. McCune, President of the bank, being notified made an information against him before the Mayor. The warrant was sent on to St. Louis, and soon after the Mayor was notified of the man's arrest. A requisition was obtained, and Chief Irwin started to, and did bring, him to this city. Yesterday afternoon he was taken to jail and locked up to await trial. Dunbar is a young man only twenty-one years of age, pleasing in manners, and of considerable intelligence. He denies any knowledge of the forgeries, but alleges that he was a companion of McGovern's. The fact that he (McGovern) always had so much money aroused his suspicion and fears, and these he openly stated. He claims never to have received a cent of the money obtained, but admits that he was in company with McGovern when he squandered his ill-gotten funds. When arrested Dunbar was working in a coffin factory owned by his brother.

CONSOLIDATION.

Meeting of the Committees on Divisions of Wards—A Slight Difference of Opinion as to Duties—Resolutions, Amendments, and Points of Order—Appointment of Sub-Committee to Draft Ordinance—The South Siders Not Active—Probable Early Renewal of the Difficulties.

The first meeting of the Consolidation Committee on the division of wards and the apportionment of members of Councils, to include the South side boroughs—so long delayed—was held last evening in the Select Council Chamber. The attendance was large, but few members being absent, including several from the South side boroughs. There appeared, however, a want of understanding as to how the Committee should go about the business on hand; many being in want of knowledge of the law governing the new apportionment, and a number having different opinions as to what should first be done to put matters in shape, there occurred considerable confusion. The final result however, as will be seen by our report, was to put the work in such shape as that it may be brought to successful conclusion by the first meeting of Councils in August, unless unforseen difficulties arise in regard to old ward lines. It is to be presumed in this, of course, that the South Side will be allowed to decide between themselves as to the division of wards there.

Shortly after the hour appointed, the meeting came to order by calling Mr. D. L. Fleming to the chair. Mr. A. H. Brown was appointed Vice President.

The roll of members of the committee was then called by the City Clerk, when the following districts were found to be represented, as stated below:

Pittsburgh—First ward, W. B. Hunter; Second, A. Arthurs; Third, S. P. Fulton; Fourth, N. McDonald, Seventh, D. L. Fleming; Eighth, Geo. B. Chalmers; Ninth, P. Zern; Tenth, J. Ahl; Eleventh, John Semple, jr.; Fifteenth, W. M. Ramsey; Sixteenth, R. H. Smith; Seventeenth, J. W. Campbell; Nineteenth, R. H. Negley; Twenty-third, J. D. Scully.

Boroughs—Union, James Martin; Monongahela, Geo. W. Jope; Ormsby, Jas. S. Atkinson; Mt. Washington, Witheron Douglass; West Pittsburgh, R. S. Hennings; South Pittsburgh, G. A. Brown; Temperanceville, W. C. Taylor; Birmingham, 1st precinct; Wm. Doyle; 2nd, Frank Zeitel; East Birmingham, 1st precinct, Jno. Eitemiller; 2nd, Robt. Brown; St. Clair, James Galvin.

The chairman announced that a quorum being present the meeting was ready for business. As instructing the gentlemen on the matters to be considered by them, Mr. Fleming read the resolution under which they were appointed, as follows:

WHEREAS, In the Act of Consolidation, approved the second day of April, A. D. 1872, uniting the boroughs of Temperanceville, Union, Allentown, Mount Washington, Birmingham, East Brimingham, Monongahela, Ormsby, South Pittsburgh, St. Clair and West Pittsburgh, with the city of Pittsburgh, the following section, numbered seven (7) in the Act provides

"That the City Councils shall, as soon as conveniently may be, before August 1st, 1872, appoint a committee on apportionment and division of wards, consisting of one from each ward, and the boroughs hereby annexed shall be entitled to appoint by their Councils one person to be a member of said committee, provided that each ward as precinct of a borough shall be entitled to one member of said committee." *

Therefore be it

Resolved, That in pursuance of this provision of the Act of Assembly, such committee on the apportionment and division of wards be appointed by the joint action of the Presidents of the Select and Common Councils.

The Chair also announced that returns of taxables had been received from the following districts: First, Third, Fourth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Ninteenth, Twenty-third wards and Union, Monongahela, Ormsby, Fort Washington, West Pittsburgh, South Pittsburgh, Temperance, Birmingham, East Birmingham and St. Clair Borough.

By request of Mr. Chalmers the act of consolidation was read by the clerk, after which an opinion by the City Solicitor on the question as to the additions to the city was read by the Chairman. The opinion expressed is that the power is given to Councils to redistrict the whole city, and that the ratio for each member would be found by dividing the whole number of taxables by forty. By the act the boroughs will have a lesser proportion of members, the total taxables in the boroughs being divided by sixty instead of forty as in the old city.

An inquiry developed the fact that the Central Board of Education was not represented as expected.

Mr. Smith moved that the City Clerk be instructed to report at once the whole number of taxables in the two parts, viz: the old city and the boroughs, so that the number of members allotted each ward or borough may be ascertained.

The Clerk stated that this could not be done as all returns of taxables were not yet in.

Mr. Marrow thought there should be nothing done until full returns were received.

Dr. Arthurs thought the intention of the law was that the whole new city should be apportioned by the division of forty into the total number of taxables.

Mr. Campbell believed that nothing would be done until there was a full representation of the committee.

Mr. McConway presented the following:

Resolved, That a sub-committee of five be appointed to prepare the draft of an ordinance providing for a division of the city into wards, the said sub-committee to report to the general committee at a day not later than July 19th.

Mr. Smith moved an amendment that the committee be made seven, which was accepted by Mr. McConway.

A discussion occurred on the resolution as amended.

Mr. Ramsey thought that the general committee should have a meeting after the full returns are made so that the sub-committee could be instructed as to what was proper for them to do.

Mr. Aiken offered the following:

Resolved, That we deem it inexpedient to make any material changes in the lines now dividing the city into wards.

Mr. Herron thought that before the adoption of the resolution the representative from each ward should be heard from as to whether or not any change of lines was desired.

Mr. Aiken said that any change which would take into consideration the school interests would be disadvantageous and improper. This was one reason why any material change should not be made.

Mr. Campbell thought that some important changes are really wanted on account of schools.

Mr. M'Conway coincided with this view and cited present dangers of children in Bayardstown in going and coming from school.

Mr. Morrow had hoped that the committee from the Central Board would be present, as their views might be important and worthy of serious consideration.

Mr. Hunter asked whether the adoption of the resolution would conclude the business of the committee as far as the old city is concerned.

Mr. Fulton called for the ayes and nays.

Mr. Campbell moved that the resolution be laid on the table.

Another gentleman moved that the word "material" be striken from the resolution.

Mr. Campbell withdrew his motion when it became understood that it would stop the whole business of the evening.

Mr. Zelfel asked that the matter be postponed on account of the absence of a number of members of the committee from the South Side.

Mr. Morrow thought that time ought to be given to allow members to consult with their constituents as to the question whether changes are desired or not.

The question then recurred on the resolution of Mr. Aiken as amended, and a discussion as to whether the ayes and nays could be called in committee.

Mr. Aiken claimed that they could not, while Mr. Fulton argued that this was a deliberative body, and the ayes and nays could be called.

Mr. Jones thought that some understanding should be got at as to what is to be and what is not to be done, without having a discussion on the interesting matter to be considered, resolution after resolution is offered, amendments suggested, and discussion of rules had which are of no information to the meeting. The opinion of the solicitor in his (the speaker's) opinion was no clearer than the law.

The Chair stated the question to be on the motion to strike out the word "material" from the resolution.

Mr. Aiken urged some action of a different character looking to the settlement of the matter as regards the old city, so that at the next meeting the South Side wards may be arranged. It is necessary that the matter be decided upon before the August meeting of Councils, and it will be necessary that prompt action be taken.

Mr. Smith said that the ordinance when prepared by the sub-committee, would be reported to the general committee and then each and all members may make such suggestions as may be thought necessary and proper.

Mr. Jones did not like to have a sub-committee fix up these matters when the general committee were appointed for that purpose, and that each member must, by right, be heard on his own ward.

The amendment to strike out the word "material" was lost, but before a division was made, as called for, the amendment was withdrawn.

The question then recurred on the resolution of Mr. Aiken. Considerable confusion occurred, amid which Dr. Arthurs moved that the whole subject be laid on the table, seconded by Mr. Jones.

Mr. Aiken made the point of order that the motion was not in order.

This resulted in an order for a vote on Mr. Aiken's resolution, which was...

Mr. Jones moved that the whole subject be laid on the table, upon which a vote was taken, but the count was disputed, and it was recalled when it was decided lost.

After further disputes on the status of matters before the meeting.

Mr. Scully offered the following:

Resolved, That we deem it inexpedient to make any material change in the boundaries of the twenty-three wards.

Questions of order were raised, and the Chair decided that the resolution could not be offered, one of similar purport having been just voted down.

The original resolution, presented by Mr. McConway, was then taken up, and Mr. McConway accepted the resolution of Mr. Scully as a part thereof.

Dr. Ahl moved that one member of the Central Board of Education be added to the committee, as provided by the resolution. was also accepted by Mr. McConway.

Objections were still made that the resolution of Mr. Scully could not be again introduced, which caused some confusion, but finally the question was put and carried.

The chairman appointed the following gentlemen on such committee: Messrs. McConway, Doyle, R. H. Negley, Dr. Ahl, Atkinson, Robert Brown, Dr. McDonald and Peter Zern.

Mr. Jones raised the important question whether the assessment to be acted upon was that of last January, or was it to be a new one up to July 1st. The gentleman stated that he understood that there was no uniformity in the matter; some were new, and other returns were from the January assessment.

The clerk stated that no return could be accepted other than that of January last, and each assessor was so instructed.

Mr. Smith read the law to show that the assessment for apportionment shall be made before July 1st.

Mr. Chalmers thought that question as clear as the nose on his face.

Mr. Aiken took issue on the subject, claiming that on or before July 1st the return of taxables was to be made, but such return was of the assessment made at the regular time—the early part of the year.

The clerk stated that this was the opinion of the City Solicitor, and it was decided that this should govern.

On motion, adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman of the sub-committee.

Carriages and Buggies

We are glad that we are enabled to chronicle the success of a home manufacturing firm, in its competition with eastern workmen. When Messrs. Workman & Davis entered the lists, many doubted their ability to produce an article that would equal those of eastern manufacture. But after they had shown what they could do, and their carriages, and buggies and other manufactures were fairly put upon the market, this doubt gave way to pleasure and satisfaction among all who could appreciate home enterprise. Especially was the gratification complete among advertisers when they found they could purchase the carriages &c., just as well made as them of the east, not inferior either in finish, and yet at a lower price,—an actual saving of money, and the vexation of having to wait until an order could be sent east and the desired vehicle shipped. These manufactures of Messrs. Workman & Davis have now gained a first class reputation, and they well merit it—a fact, which will be duly impressed upon the minds of all who call at the Bazaar, Nos. 167, 169, and 171 Penn Avenue.

The Test.

Almost any sewing machine will do some kinds of work, and in that respect may be called a sewing machine; but it is not all of them that will answer for the sewing work of a family in which fine and coarse sewing is done, and where the full powers of the machine are tested. For that reason, many people have been disgusted with some machines which they have purchased, and which, when put to the test, would not answer. They might have avoided all difficulty if they had purchased one of the famous American Button-hole and Over-seaming Machines, for they are warranted to do equally well any kind of sewing, from a horse blanket to a fine cambric ruffle, and then, besides, they have an advantage in the making up of garments,—the working of the button-holes—which is possessed by no other machine. Call at Espy's, No. 178 Liberty street, and see the American.

THE ORANGEMEN.

Yesterday's Celebration—A Respectable and Orderly Turnout—But One Interruption.

For the first time in many years the Orangemen in this city, yesterday turned out in procession, to do honor to the 12th of July, commonly known as Orange Day.

As the celebration of this day in our midst, is unusually rare if not altogether novel, some facts connected with the reason for setting apart the 12th of July as a festival among Protestant Irishmen, will prove interesting. Orangeism is a secret association which derives its name from William Third of England, commonly known as the Prince of Orange, and was instituted in Ireland in 1795. The day, the 12th of July, which is celebrated by the members of the association, was selected to commemorate the victories of King William over James Second on Irish soil during the month of July, 1699. On June 14th in that year King William arrived in Ireland with an army and James Second put his forces in motion to meet the new comer. On the 30th of June William and James confronted each other on the opposite banks of the river Boyne. A battle ensued the following day when William was victorious. On the 12th of July the battle of Aughrim was fought and this victory marked the commencement of the era, when Protestantism became a settled fact on Irish soil.

Yesterday morning was an inauspicious one, and at the time appointed for the members of the various lodges to muster, a heavy, steady rain was falling. But notwithstanding this serious drawback, it was even at that hour evident, that the Orangemen having determined upon a parade could not be detained from the fulfillment of their purpose. Bands of music were heard in various parts of the city, and men with orange sashes or rosettes were seen wending their way to the place of rendezvous at the corner of Wood street and Sixth avenue. As it seemed probable the weather would improve by noon, a postponement of the mustering was made for that hour, and as the subsequent clearing up showed, with much wisdom.

At 12 o'clock the various lodges of the Loyal Orange Institution, numbering five, assembled at the place appointed, and the line of march was at once taken up. The procession was headed by the Great Western band, followed by the Chief Marshal, William T. Armstrong, and his aids, William J. Hicks, George Johnston, William Carson and John Murray, these gentlemen being mounted on horseback. The lodges represented were No. 12, Apprentice Boy Lodge; No. 13, Sons of Goshen Lodge; No. 20, Pittsburgh True Blue Lodge; and No. 29, Allegheny True Blue Lodge. Each of these divisions was headed by a band, and carried in its ranks the banner of the lodge. Some of these banners were very beautiful and costly.

The procession formed on Sixth avenue, right resting on Wood street; down Wood street to Third avenue; from Third avenue to Ross street; from Ross street to Fifth avenue; out of Fifth avenue to Pride street; from Pride to Fulton street; from Fulton street to Wylie, down Wylie to Fifth avenue; from Fifth avenue to Market street; down Market street to Sixth avenue; over Suspension bridge; up Federal street to North avenue; from North avenue to Pennsylvania avenue, Pennsylvania avenue to Beaver avenue; Beaver avenue to Ridge; Ridge to Marion; Marion to Ohio street; along Ohio to Chestnut; down Chestnut; over Mechanic's street bridge to Penn avenue; down Penn avenue to Eleventh; Eleventh to Liberty; Liberty to Sixth, and disperse.

About twelve hundred Organgemen were in line and they presented a highly respectable appearance. They were well dressed, and it is worthy of note that but one man in the ranks was intoxicated. All wore Orange scarfs, rosettes or bows and some, handsome wreaths of the same color. Another noticeable feature was that the only colors carried, save the banners of the lodges, were the "stars and stripes." The procession was witnessed by crowds of persons who thronged the sidewalks all along the route. The turn out, was in every sense a successful one, reflecting the highest credit upon those participating in it.

AN INTERRUPTION.

The processionists experienced but one interruption all through the route. When passing the corner of Eleventh street and Penn, a man, who was evidently under the influence of liquor, took umbrage at one of the banners, which bore a picture of King William Second, (the Orange King) on horseback. Remarking "that that was three hundred years ago" this man rushed into the procession and snatched at the banner with the intention, of wresting it from the hands of the man who was carrying it. In this, however, he did not succeed. One of the Orangemen drew a revolver and fired, but the shot fortunately did not take effect either upon the man fired at or any of the by-standers. The anti-King William man was soon surrounded by a crowd of the processionists and for a moment it looked as if it would fare badly with him. Officer Roger O'Mara, however, at this juncture jumped in between the man and his assailants and ordered them to stand back. Other officers came to his assistance, the man was carried up Penn street, and the procession moved on. The prisoner was taken to the lock-up where he gave his name as John Loughlin. At the afternoon hearing Mayor Blackmore fined him $50 and costs, at the same time remarking that he was determined that all good citizens should be protected, and that if it was in his power to inflict a heavier fine, he should do so. Some friends of the prisoner paid the money and he was thereupon discharged.

INCIDENTS.

As the procession was marching down Chestnut street, Allegheny, George Schmidt, a member of the Great Western Band, was overcome by the heat. He was taken to his home and last evening was considerably better.

While passing along Manhattan street, Allegheny, John Flemming struck one of the men who was marching in the procession named Robert McKenna. Flemming was afterwards arrested on information of McKenna, who charged him with disorderly conduct, and was held for a hearing.

NEW BLAST FURNACE

Steubenville as a Manufacturing Site.

The new blast furnace, says the Steubenville Herald, is progressing in a satisfactory manner. The buildings necessary for the works are near completion, and by the first of October it is hoped the furnace will be in active operation. In building the furnace, the company will expend about $120,000. This sum is more than necessary, for the single furnace, but with a view of increasing the facilities, they have erected buildings of sufficient capacity for an additional furnace, which will be erected at an early day, provided the one now in course of construction is a success. In paying $120,000 for the works to run one furnace, the company provide themselves with the facilities to double the capacity. In the expenditure of $120,000, they secure the buildings necessary for the erection of another blast for $50,000 whenever the committee think it advisable to build. So far the project has been successfully managed, and the present indications are that it will be pushed through to completion without any delay. Such an enterprise is a credit to the city, and we trust the men who have been instrumental in getting up the project, and who had invested their money in it, will not be disappointed.

O, that I were Beautiful! is the unspoken wish of thousands of women to whom nature has denied the charm of a pure, fresh transparent complexion. To gratify this wish HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM was introduced. The cosmetics of the day have been pronounced poisonous by the most distinguished chemists, and it was found that their ultimate effect was to whiten the skin as well as to paralize the external nerves. The ladies hailed with delight the advent of a beautiful, herbal and floral preparation capable of imparting to their faces, necks and arms a porcelain smoothness and a tinge like that of the finest oriental pearl. They soon discovered that it was a "new thing under the sun," incomparable and unapproachable. Unquestionably the MAGNOLIA BALM has been the great toilet success of the present century.

POISONED WITH ICECREAM.

A Startling Story—Thirty-one Persons Poisoned.

The story of the poisoning of thirty-one persons by eating ice cream is thus detailed by the New Castle Courant. It seems that on the evening of the 3d inst., Mr. Isaac Aults, of New Wilmington, Lawrence county, made quite a large quantity of ice cream, expecting to supply some pic-nics on the 4th. A number of citizens of the village, knowing of the fact, purchased of it on the evening of the 3d, and partook of it. In half an hour to an hour from the time, every one was sick, with all symptoms of poison. Physicians were summoned, some sending as far as New Castle. The physicians pronounced them cases of poison, but were unable to determine by what substance. Many of the patients, it was feared, would die; but we believe all have recovered. It is unfortunate that when Mr. Aults discovered that his cream was poison, he threw away all that was left of it, instead of preserving it so that an analysis could be made. Whether the poison was in the flavoring extract or had got in some other way, is a mystery which may be solved hereafter.
